Nexeo Plastics Expands North American Inside Sales Center

THE WOODLANDS, Texas, July 13, 2020 – Nexeo Plastics (the “Company”), a leading global thermoplastics resin distributor, announced today the completion of a reorganization and expansion of its North American inside sales operations. Located in Dublin, Ohio, the inside sales center has been expanded with additional staff and technology to optimize service to its customers.

“These changes support our strategy of providing a superior customer experience,” said Larry Hunt, vice president of customer solutions. “Customers are demanding fast and flexible ways to connect with their suppliers for critical business information, and we are expanding to meet that need.”

The inside sales center enhancements are part of recently announced realignments to the North American sales organization. Taking an omni-channel approach, the transformations are designed to increase the opportunities in meeting customers where they desire to meet. The addition of staff in digital technology and in-house technical services aligned to field sales teams and territories will further increase those interactions.

Jay Simmons has been appointed to lead the team as insides sales manager. Simmons has held several positions with Nexeo Plastics over an eight-year period, most recently as a manager of growth initiatives.

“These moves provide additional resources where it is needed most — delivering more personal engagement, focus and faster responses in identifying product options and providing technical solutions for our customers,” said Simmons.

Nexeo Plastics also provides online options for customers through its MyNexeo customer portal. The MyNexeo portal (plastics.mynexeo.com) allows convenient 24/7 account access to place orders, check order status, track and trace shipments, and download documents, such as certifications and invoices.
