Nexeo Plastics Names Nathan Wiker Vice President, North America Commercial Sales

THE WOODLANDS, Texas, Aug. 26, 2021 – Nexeo Plastics, a leading global thermoplastics resin distributor, is proud to welcome Nathan J. Wiker as its new vice president of North America commercial sales. Nathan will lead the North America commercial sales organization and is responsible for the continued development and expansion of Nexeo Plastics' footprint across all existing and prospective vertical markets. He fills the role previously held by Arturo Hoyo, now vice president of North America Product Line Management.

"Nathan brings a wealth of industry experience," said Paul Tayler, president and chief executive officer of Nexeo Plastics. "His background in the industry combined with his technical and leadership experience makes him a great addition to our team as we focus on growing our share of the market."

Nathan comes to Nexeo Plastics after a distinguished career at Dow, where he served in a variety of roles in Packaging and Specialty Plastics, including technical, sales, product management, marketing, and commercial leadership.

Nathan graduated summa cum laude from Clemson University with a bachelor's degree in chemical engineering. Additionally, he holds a Master of Business Administration from Northwood University.
